

Preserving Our Transportation Assets

By John L. Craig
Director, Nebraska Department of Roads

Highways and bridges are essential for the seamless movement of people and goods, to our quality of life, and for the support of our economy. As such, we will continue to work in cooperation with public and private organizations to accomplish our mission to provide a safe, reliable and environmentally compatible transportation system for the movement of people and goods.

In this new fiscal year, we will continue the projects that we have underway and begin work on new projects. With funding decreasing and construction costs rising, we have painstakingly made decisions that will give top priority to preserving the state's existing highway and bridge assets.

Knowing that continued challenges lie ahead, we are confident in our program to insure that system preservation needs are met. On behalf of our department employees and many working partners, we welcome your interest, your support and your input in helping us to keep Nebraskans moving. We are all taxpayers, this is our transportation agency and we are working on your behalf.
